Situated atop a prime corner location in one of the most desirable neighborhoods in Richmond, the 1884 T. Wiley Davis mansion is an architectural stunner in the Historic St. Johns District in the Church Hill neighborhood. Filled with natural light on all three floors, this striking Second Empire style home features modern amenities along with numerous original architectural details. This beauty has a uniquely functional and roomy floor plan including a 500 sf master suite with laundry, updated kitchen, 9 fireplaces (6 wood-burning, 3 plumbed for gas), captivating third floor views in all directions, the original front wrought iron fence, and a lush, private backyard with mature trees. The combination of these attributes makes this home a perfect place to entertain and enjoy life in this historic community. Just steps to award winning restaurants, a pleasant four-block stroll to the incredible green space and views of the internationally acclaimed Libby Hill Park, a half mile to the Virginia Capital Bike Trail, and less than a mile to the Virginia State Capitol and other downtown attractions, this is truly an exceptional home in an exceptional location.
